Tinory reflects on trip to Cuba

He met Fidel Castro back in 1959

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

The year was 1959, and a teenaged Rik Tinory was warming up for his set at the Hotel Nacional in Havana, Cuba, sweating under the suspicious gaze of Fidel Castro and his heavily armed entourage. The revolution had just ended, and Castro wasn't feeling too friendly toward anyone with an American accent.

But there was one American accent that held a special place in Castro's heart, and Tinory had it. Castro approached him and asked, "Are you from Boston?"

"It's been a happy ride in the entertainment industry. One of the highlights was Havana."

Rik Tinory

Timidly, Tinory admitted he was. Castro then revealed he had studied at Harvard Law School. But what really broke the ice was a passion they shared, a passion that transcended culture, locale, and ideology: their love of the Boston Red Sox.

"He was very friendly to me," said Tinory. That night, while he was not performing, Castro invited Tinory to share his table.

At that point in history, American performers were hesitant to go to Cuba, fearing the aftershocks of the revolution. Tinory was the first to brave it. "To me," he said, "it felt normal. I didn't feel any danger."

The next thing he knew, he was touring the country flanked by Castro himself, Che Guevara, and his own traveling companion, heavyweight champion Joe Lewis, who had been the one to invite Tinory to Cuba in the first place after seeing him perform in Florida.

Castro showed them the mountains where the revolution began. They visited the home of Ernest Hemingway and met both the author and the man who had inspired one of his most

New dentists filling old practice

Dr. Katherine McArthur retiring after 27 years

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

When a well-loved dentist retires, it leaves a hole in the community that - like a cavity - is not easy to fill. Dr. Katherine McArthur is retiring this month after 27 years at her practice on 3A in Cohasset and, as indicated by the hearty turnout at Tuesday evening's farewell gathering, she will be missed. "It's time for me to spend time with my husband and family," McArthur said. She has two children, one in college and one in high school.

smile - not just because her teeth are perfect, but because that smile is clearly coming from the heart.

"My philosophy as a dentist is to make my patients feel comfortable and confident," said Dr. Alison Freeman. "People are terrified of us. They have a lot of anxiety about dental treatment, a lot of questions."

Freeman understands. Dental work is "in your head. It's hard to trust something that feels uncomfortable," she said.

Townhomes ready to break ground

By Amanda C. Thompson

The townhouse project at 8 James Lane has finally chipped through the ledge that's been getting in its way for the past six years - literally and metaphorically.

While no construction has yet begun on the site, the developers know it sits primarily on ledge. They'll be paying 50 percent more to chip that ledge away, since blasting is not allowed in proximity to the James Lane culvert and the shallow wells nearby.

The Planning Board voted unanimously on Wednesday to approve the final revised site plan, factoring in some adjustments set forth in a recent letter from

New HR Director is here to help employees

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

"Who are we and why are we here?"

It's a big philosophical question, but it's also a question a lot of employees ask themselves in the workplace on a daily basis. In Cohasset, it's Lisa Ugialoro's job to help them answer that.

Ugialoro has been providing general contracted human resources work to the town of Cohasset since March 2014. She has assessed and presented training opportunities to town leadership, worked to redefine HR and HR management, and, generally, gone about the business of "giving people the tools they need to be successful at their job."

Also, she recommended the town hire someone permanently to fill the role of HR manager. Cohasset had never had an HR manager. It was like they had maple trees and wanted syrup but hadn't installed any taps.

"The legal, policy, and paperwork - the 'hard side' of HR - all that was getting done," said Ugialoro. "But the 'soft side' can have a great impact. There was a huge opportunity to take better advantage of skills and the talented people who work here."

Ugialoro, a resident of Ashland, was formally hired

POLICE BEAT

Fee hike for solicitor permits proposed

By Mary Ford
mford@wickedlocal.com

Police Chief William Quigley plans to draft an article for the fall Special Town Meeting to raise the permit fees for door-to-door solicitors from $25 to $75.

During the past week, police responded to two complaints about solicitors selling magazines; as it turned out the solicitors were permitted in Scituate but not Cohasset.

The town's bylaw regulating door-to-door soliciting dates back to 2007 and has not been updated.

Quigley said the fee hike would be more in line with the costs incurred by police in issuing the permits that includes an extensive background check, photography, laminated permit and lanyard. He explained there are costs associated with materials and time. Police run the applicants through the Registry of Motor Vehicles, Board of Probation, FBI, NCIC (National Crime Information Center) and the Interstate Identification Index.

Under the town bylaw, solicitors are required to register with the police when they apply for a $25 license. They are required to wear a permit badge issued by the police that includes their name and photograph. In addition solicitors have to provide police with their name, address, date of birth and height, weight and eye color, social security number; dates and times of canvassing activities; name and address of employer; and a brief description of the purposes of the solicitation.

Exceptions to the bylaw are town, state or federal officers or employees on official business; minors under 18 unless in connection with a commercial activity; candidates for public office or campaign workers; those promoting political causes and those soliciting for charitable organizations unless those solicitors are paid.

Break-in

Some Cohasset residents awoke Monday morning (Sept. 21) to an automated phone alert sent out by police as they searched the town's Hillside neighborhood for a man suspected of breaking into a home in the area.

Cohasset Police Chief William Quigley said Christopher Easterbrooks, 38, of 114 Mountain Ave., Pembroke, was eventually found on S. Main Street in the village and was arrested for unarmed burglary.

Quigley said police first began looking for the man after a woman called 911 around 4:45 a.m. Monday and said she had found a man she knew trying to break into her house through a bathroom window. Police officers brought in the police K-9 to help look for the man, who had taken off after the woman found him.

Quigley said police searched for the suspect for about an hour and half before finding him outside a convenience store around 7 a.m. While still searching for him, police sent an automated call to neighbors asking them to call 911 if they spotted him.

Quigley said the call was to give area residents the heads up and they did not want people to be alarmed if they saw the K-9 tracking through their yard.

In a separate incident last week, Easterbrooks was taken into protective custody after the same woman, who reported him breaking in, reported he was intoxicated and she wanted him to leave her residence, police said.

Camper parked

A camper was sent on its way after a caller complained it was disrespectful to park it in the Beechwood Cemetery on Monday evening Sept. 14. Police said that some motorists who use their GPS to find Wompatuck end up in the cemetery. The gate on Doane Street into the park is locked to vehicles.

Lamb shank

A concerned walker notified police after locating a mysterious bone on the beach on Monday (Sept. 14) around 7 p.m. Police send a photograph to the Medical Examiner's Office that determined the bone was a lamb shank and should be disposed of.

Warrant

Police arrested Douglas D. Walsh, 49, of 45 C. S. Main St., Cohasset, on Monday (Sept. 14) around 8:45 p.m. on a warrant from the probation department. Police said Walsh may have violated the conditions of his probation.

Construction

Black Rock Road residents have not been happy with construction vehicles blocking the roadway and damaging some lawns in the neighborhood. The complaints were logged and the neighbors were working with the construction company to straighten out the problem.

Hit & Run

A 54-year-old Scituate man in a 2015 Dodge pickup truck notified police on Wednesday (Sept. 16) around 9:10 a.m. that a 2001 Ford Explorer backed into his truck at Aubuchon and left the scene. A bystander also witnessed the accident. Police traced the plate to a 60-year-old Hull man who is being summonsed to court for leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage. There was significant damage to the pickup.

Raccoon

A concerned grandmother notified police on Friday (Sept. 18) about a sick-acting raccoon hanging out by the pool; she was concerned for her grandchildren. Police arrived and the raccoon was put down. Police said that any strange-acting wild mammal is assumed to be rabid because rabies is affecting wildlife in the region.

Drone

A Cohasset woman called police when she saw a drone flying overhead while she was sunbathing on her roof deck on Friday (Sept. 18). Police spoke to the 47-year-old man with the drone who was working with a real estate agency trying to take aerials of a neighboring house that was going up for sale. The officer took a look at the video footage to make sure there was no footage of the woman.

Welfare check

Police checked on a man with crutches walking along Beechwood Street on Friday morning (Sept. 18) after receiving a call that he was waving his crutches at passing cars. Police said the man was fine and was trying to get the cars to slow down.

Cohasset police get refresher training

Cohasset officers spent a day training last weekend in the Cohasset Emergency Operations Center in the basement of the Deer Hill School. Trooper Sean Reardon of the Massachusetts State Police Academy Staff was on hand to conduct refresher training in Standardized Field Sobriety Testing (SFST) for all personnel. Reardon also provided updates in OUI (Operating Under the Influence) laws to the officers.

All Massachusetts police officers are mandated to receive at least 40 hours of continuing education classes every year, along with 12 hours of use-of-force training police complete the bulk of their "in-service" training between August and April yearly.

APPALACHIA SERVICE PROJECT

Year 28 for Cohasset ASP begins

Over 100 teens and their parents attended the ASP Information Meeting held last Sunday evening.

The Appalachia Service Project is a faith-based home repair project whose goal is to make homes safer, warmer, and drier for families living in Central Appalachia.

The dates of the upcoming 2016 ASP trip will be June 25 through July 3. Registration forms were distributed and have begun to come in through the mail slot at 2nd Congregational Church, where the ASP office is located. The completed forms, due October 2nd, are available in the offices at Cohasset High School, First Parish, St. Stephen's and 2nd Congregational churches. Parents & other interested adults are encouraged to sign on as group leaders. Adults are needed to provide the leadership necessary to create enough work crews for all the teenagers interested in signing on to provide home repair for families in need in Central Appalachia.

At the Information Meeting, Gary and Judy Ritts announced their stepping aside from their leadership role of the Cohasset Appalachia Service Project after 27 "amazing" years. A formal Board of Directors has been established to carry on this life-changing home repair mission.

Officers of the new board include Phil Lehr as Chairman, David Clinton as Program Director and John Chapman as Treasurer. Other members of the board include Jo Lehr, Jack Dane, Barbara Hoyler, Janet Hoyler, and Judy & Gary Ritts. The new Office Administrator is Kim Ryan, who will be happy to answer any questions at info@cohassetasp.org.

Cohasset ASP volunteers continue to be very appreciative of the community's ongoing, generous support of the Appalachia Service Project. Come on along for the memorable, monumental life-changing adventure of being an ASP volunteer!

AUTHOR TALKS

Boston immigration subject of book

By Marylou Lawrence
Special to the Mariner

Boston 1965 — a city in paralysis. Like other cities throughout the US, Boston's population had plummeted 20 percent and was crippled by divisive racism, a shrunken tax base, and a swollen crime rate.

But then the federal government lifted its restrictive immigration policies and the new influx of immigrants coupled with a strengthening global economy provided hope for the beleaguered city. Boston would have its renaissance and ultimately become recognized as an intellectual, medical, and technological mecca.

To mark the 50th anniversary of the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1965, Boston College History Professor Marilyn Johnson will discuss her new book, "The New Bostonians: How Immigrants have Transformed the Metro Region Since the 1960s," at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on Sunday, Oct. 4, at 4 p.m.

In her book, Professor Johnson looks at the changes triggered by the Immigration Act and points out how socially, culturally, and politically different the Boston area is today than it was 50 years ago when only 13 percent of its population was foreign born, and a third of its total population was of Irish descent.

She says, "We know much about the Irish, Italian, and earlier European migrations, but historians have largely ignored the new Bostonians — a far more diverse group who come from a broader range of educational background and skills, and bring new cultural and religious traditions that have had little prior presence in the region."

Today's newcomers are primarily from the Caribbean, South America, China, India, Africa, and the Middle East, and now constitute 27 percent of Boston's population. Johnson looks at how these new immigrants and their children have shaped the metropolitan culture. They have migrated to jobs that didn't exist 50 years ago and to communities that in the past rarely housed immigrants.

Professor Johnson has written three other historical works: "The Second Gold Rush: Oakland and the East Bay in WWII," "Street Justice: A History of Police Violence in New York City," and "Violence in the West."

A wine and cheese reception will follow Professor Johnson's talk, and Buttonwood Books will have copies of her book available for purchase and signing. Admission is free.

AROUND TOWN

Drug Take-Back Day Saturday

Fall is here

Hi Cohasset and welcome fall! The colors are just starting to peek out and the crisp mornings are starting with the warmth of the sun heating the day as time goes on. Take the time even if it is only for a short moment to get outside and enjoy it, it is so awesome. We are gearing up for October Fall Festivals, Halloween Fun and the (get ready for it,) the Holidays. Make sure to start sending it all into me by email: aroundtowncohasset@yahoo.com along with all the great celebrations, births, business and school news, too. Enjoy your week Cohasset 143!

Take-back day!

Here is some news from The Cohasset Police Dept.: Tomorrow, Sept 26th is National Drug Take Back Day and the Cohasset Police HQ will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. for collection of your unwanted and expired meds.

It's a great time to clean out your medicine cabinet too! Protect your kids, families and environment by properly disposing of your unwanted and expired medicines. Medicines in the home are a leading cause of accidental poisoning and flushed or trashed medicines can end up polluting our waters. Rates of prescription drug abuse are alarmingly high -- over half of teens abusing medicines get them from a family member or friend, including the home medicine cabinet, and often without their knowledge.

So go through your cabinets, medicine bags and other spots, then head to CPD Headquarters.

Visit resident farm animals and enjoy post-race refreshments. Prizes for top finishers from Marathon Sports and Chipotle. Register by Oct. 2nd and you will be entered into a drawing for gift certificates for their Farm Stand. This race benefits the Frank H. White Scholarship Fund that makes visits to Holly Hill Farm possible for those in need. Detailed information and sign up online at: hollyhillfarm.org

Poetry readings

First Parish is offering a series of poetry reading group sessions open to the public. The group will meet on five successive Monday afternoons, at 4, beginning Sept. 28, in the Atkinson Room, First Parish House, 23 North Main St. The focus of the group will be readings and reflections on contemporary poets Gary Snyder and Jane Hirshfield. The selections will be from Snyder's collection "Danger on Peaks" and Hirshfield's "Come, Thief." Both volumes are available online and in bookstores with good poetry sections. Both poets are students of Buddhism.

Jim Morrison and Marie Caristi-MacDonald will lead the sessions, and the Rev. Jill Cowie will serve as a facilitator. A donation of $10 is

"We are pleased that Connor has decided to attend Eastern and has the opportunity to experience the benefits of our liberal arts education while enjoying student life on our beautiful campus," said Chris Dorsey, director of admissions. Dorsey notes that Eastern freshmen come from 161 of Connecticut's 169 towns, from 25 other states and from 18 other countries.

By Tammy Hatch

Meet Diamond, a beautiful, sweet, super friendly 6-year-old Tuxedo whose story is one we are always sorry to tell. Adopted from us as a kitten, Diamond has found herself back at the shelter due to her owner's illness.

Unexpected and scary, this is a sad time for Diamond, but she is such a wonderful girl who was so well loved that her new adopter will find her love is rewarded tenfold with the return of affection and love Diamond has to offer. Diamond is sure to charm her way into your heart with her stunning green eyes, mellow personality and good nature. This girl has it all.

LIFE AT CHS

Crazy costumes, crazy fun!

The students of CHS have found that school is an infinitely more pleasant place to be when no one is melting in their seats — though the open windows in Mr. Welch's economics class certainly did make for a chilly review of supply-and-demand graphs. Hot coffee cups and sweaters are making more frequent appearances in the halls, and the announcement of our Spirit Week days only served to heighten the excitement.

This year, the underclassmen will be presenting their school spirit through adornment of their best American, Surfer or Skater, Country Club, and Superhero outfits, finishing off the week with the classic Cohasset Blue Day, when the pep rally puts students at the height of their excitement for the proceeding football game and, of course, Homecoming Dance.

The seniors' spirit week themes, however, have yet to be revealed to anyone outside the Class of 2016 — everyone will just have to wait for next week to see what crazy costumes decorate the hoard of seniors standing on the student parking lot steps every morning. Just know that if you're visiting Saver's this weekend, myself and numerous others will be there hunting for this year's attire.

Parents got to experience a "day in the life" of their high school student this past Monday at Back to School Night — if only they'd get a taste of the workload! My parents simply loved all of my instructors, as do I. Since the first day of school teachers of Cohasset High have been sporting large red pins that loudly declare "Protect & Preserve". This alliterative slogan refers to the teacher's collective union effort to gain a better contract. One student who has taken a particular interest in this effort, senior Grace Gaumer, has -- on her own time -- surveyed a myriad of students on their opinions concerning how valuable they find the efforts of their teachers to create a helpful, safe learning environment during as well as after school hours.

Last week was somewhat of a rough one for Cohasset High School sports — but we're more optimistic, beginning the week with the field hockey team winning a home game against Mashpee 6-1. The golf team followed this win with one of their own on Tuesday, defeating Archbishop Williams. The boys and girls soccer teams have had their hands full this week with both teams going up against Mashpee High School; the girls' team traveling on Thursday, and the boys' team sticking to the home turf. However the boys' work is not yet over -- they finish off the week with a game at Duxbury tonight. Good luck, Skippers!

We once again expect an enormous turnout tonight for our home football game against Hull High School; the pep band's prepared, and the Cheer Team is ready to lead us in another round of high-spirited chants.

This past Wednesday saw the school's first Spinnaker meeting! Mr. McCabe's room was jam-packed with enthusiastic students, all ready to settle into another year of piecing together the much-awaited and enjoyed school newspaper. There's a spot for anybody and everybody; whether you want to be a part of the editing team, to write about the ins-and-outs of high school life, or simply harass freshman at the front door to buy a copy off you — there's space on the Spinnaker Team! Middle Schoolers can even get involved with the revived "In The Middle" section of the newspaper featuring CMS's finest.

The anticipation leading up to Spirit Week can only be rivaled by the excitement during. A word of advice: pick out your spirit outfits the night before and be as bold as possible -- if you're thinking "this is a little overboard" when you put of your costume, it's probably perfect. Next week will come with unabashed display of school spirit and the hype of the Homecoming game -- and I can't wait.

as HR Director on August 31 and now serves the town on a consistent, though part-time, basis. She spends one day of the week in the town manager's office, one in a private room at Town Hall, and one at the library.

She's not playing musical offices. She's trying to give town employees every opportunity to come forward with questions, comments, or concerns in an environment that feels totally safe and confidential.

But that's just part of the job — the part people typically think of when they think about HR. Much of Uglialoro's role is to manage policies and procedures and define the structure by which jobs are done.

What Uglialoro has really focused on is what she calls the HR cycle: identifying what a job does, finding the right person to fill that job, providing professional development and team integration, evaluating, and continuing to revise the job description as it evolves.

"My job is to show people why their job exists and help them understand expectations," said Uglialoro.

She has played a big role in articulating and formatting job descriptions for new hires, which helps both employees and managers understand what is needed and expected. Next, she plans to phase in performance evaluations like the one Town Manager Chris Senior recently underwent.

"It shouldn't be once a year," she said. "It should be an ongoing conversation. It's a performance management process."

Uglialoro joined forces with the town of Cohasset shortly after Senior was hired. He needed someone to help articulate consistent, town-wide policies on subjects like harassment and discrimination, which are federally- and state-mandated.

Uglialoro was working independently at the time, contracting out her services to multiple clients at a time. After Senior ran into her at a hockey game at their shared alma mater, Boston University, he reached out to ask for her help.

Going forward, Uglialoro will continue to do contracted work in the gaps of her part-time schedule with Cohasset, as well as raising her two young children.

"That's my most important job!" she said.

famous books, "The Old Man and the Sea."

"I was a young teenager," Tinory said, looking back. "I didn't think danger; I just thought fun. It was an amazing time."

He remembers a country full of natural and architectural beauty, but most of all, human vitality. "The Cuban people couldn't be nicer. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, traffic would stop and the streets would be lined with music and people dancing," he recalls. "It was a beautiful, beautiful country."

The U.S. severed ties with Cuba shortly after that, but Tinory couldn't have gone back, anyway. Upon his return, life swept him up: he got married, moved to Cohasset, and kept himself impressively busy with his musical career.

His song "Esperanza" ("Hope") was composed during his Cuban travels and was inspired by a dancer who performed at one of the same shows as he did, whose name was Esperanza. He's still recording music today: his new single, "For All We Know," was recently released.

In addition to his own music, Tinory has recorded Aerosmith and the 1979 visit of Pope John Paul II to Boston Common, which was the world's largest recording session, featuring over two million people.

"It's been a happy ride in the entertainment industry," Tinory said. "One of the highlights was Havana."

Now that diplomatic relations with the U.S. have been restored, Tinory hopes that Cuba can return to its former beauty and vitality. "I don't think it'll ever be the same," he allows. "It won't be 1959 again. But I think it will get back to that point; they're on the verge of a lot of stuff going on there."

After 54 years, the former Cold War enemies reestablished diplomatic relations on July 20, reopening embassies in each other's capital cities over the summer.

The U.S. trade embargo remains in place, and the issue of the naval base at Guantanamo Bay is not on the agenda anytime soon, either. Diplomats have opted to focus first on normalizing relations in other areas, such as natural disaster response, public health, and trafficking of both people and drugs.

But the good news is that regulations that took effect on Monday will simplify procedures for money transfers to Cuba, investments via web and phone, and (most importantly for Tinory) tourism.

"I plan to go there again one day if I can ever get free of my schedule," Tinory said. "I'd like to say hello to Fidel again."

OUR VIEW

Declaring war on scams

They are here in spades: phone scams. The tricksters behind these fraudulent calls are preying mostly — but not exclusively — on senior citizens. Since these calls come from other countries, the only defense at the moment appears to be a good offense.

To that end, The AARP Fraud Watch Network lit up phone lines last week as part of an effort to warn thousands of consumers about leading "imposter scams" affecting Massachusetts residents. Attorney General Maura Healey joined volunteers as they made calls to thousands of residents warning them of known imposter scams such as fraudulent callers claiming to be from the "IRS," "tech support" companies or a grandchild in trouble.

These imposter scams involve criminals who impersonate police officers, federal agents and/or financial service companies who use their fraudulent "authority" to scare people into paying money they're told they owe the IRS. Another widespread imposter scam involves scammers pretending to be a person's friend or loved one, who calls to say they're in trouble and need money. Or, a fraudster will claim to be a computer technician who needs access to a person's computer in order to "repair" a non-existent virus — and then charges a "fee" to do so.

According to the Federal Trade Commission list of top consumer fraud complaints last year, 37,422 Massachusetts residents reported being scammed. Imposter scams topped the list of consumer complaints.

The Fraud Watch Network arms people with the information they need to spot and avoid scams so they can protect themselves and their families. By visiting the Fraud Watch Network website, consumers get free access to:

■ A scam-tracking map featuring warnings from local law enforcement and first-hand accounts of breaking scams by state. Visit: www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information.

■ The Con Artist's Playbook — interviews with con artists who reveal how they steal hard-earned money.

■ A fraud hotline — 877-908-3360 — with advice from a trained volunteer about scams and how to avoid them.

■ "Watchdog Alerts" — by signing up for these free e-alerts, people receive the latest scam alerts delivered via email.

Local Senior Centers are aware of these scams and are helping to spread the word.

We encourage all families to have a conversation about scams and include the grandparents.

The scammers are always looking for new ways to trick someone; they won't go away if they continue to be successful. They only have to "score" one in maybe dozens of calls to make it worth their while.

Everyone of us needs to be on board and on alert to stop this activity from hurting anyone else.

LETTER

Cartoon issue, no laughing matter

Last week, Mat Brown, the cartoonist, penned a cartoon about the beautiful "views" some millionaires have fought about.

The James Island story is about conserving the environmental sanctuary that is still remaining in our special Town of Cohasset. Go to: savejamesisland-cohasset@gmail.com or on Facebook, Save James Island Cohasset.

The good news is that over the past 35 years, environmental laws have been enacted to protect and defend our remaining natural environment. No new construction is ever permitted within the 50 foot Wetlands Buffer Zone. All coastal wetlands towns have that law.

Prior to these new laws, the granite that is so prevalent around this town really did preserve some of our beautiful wetlands by not being percable as a building site. Now, with the new sewer district along the coastline, that protection has been obliterated. Now, our Town has only the wetland bylaws that to protect our Town from environmental abuse and indiscriminate handouts of sewer capacity.

A Town Three-Five Year Plan would certainly help save what remains of Cohasset's environmental beauty. Surely, this is "no laughing matter" to those who see Cohasset as a special place to call home!

A cartoon character, like Smokey the Bear, would sum up with, "Only You Can Protect the Environment!" or "It's The Law!"

ConCom needs to stick to its role

On Sept. 17 I attended the meeting of the Cohasset Conservation Commission. One of the issues discussed was the Sullivan property at 70 Whitehead Road. At this property landfill has been deposited and a foundation built on within the 50 foot buffer zone and 100 foot buffer zone of regulated wetland resource areas. This was done without any permitting whatsoever. The owners are now enduring a fine of $300 per day.

It appears that the appropriate course of action is for the owner to remove the foundation and fill and restore the property to the original condition. This is the explicit position of the Conservation Commission and should be commenced and finished with all due haste. At this point the owner could then proceed to take the necessary permitting process to achieve his objective provided it fully met with all permitting procedures.

At one point the discussion turned to determining whether the fill was clean. The Commission chair, Joseph Patrick Kennedy, appeared willing to allow the contractor to choose a firm to take core samples and was particularly cavalier about the rigor of sample taking and the chain of custody. Whereas, there is an immense financial benefit to the owner to demonstrate that the fill is "clean" the sampling must be of the highest rigor and integrity.

Further why there is any discussion on this is irrelevant since the Conservation Commission has already required that the land be returned to its original state which includes removal of the fill, clean or not.

I think it is paramount that the Conservation Commission recognizes its role is to protect the wetlands and not facilitate working around regulations that appear quite clear.

Global warning focus of forum

The climate organization 350Mass South Shore will host a forum on Oct. 15 about how global warming has affected the towns in this region and about how either one of a couple of bills in the state Legislature could be a solution to this man-made disaster. The forum will take place at the Old Ship Meeting House, 90 Main St., Hingham, beginning at 7:30 p.m. It will include a panel of environmentalists, and will conclude with a question and answer period.

Celebrity chefs at senior center

At many senior centers, clients attending lunch dine on less-than-inspiring "institutional food." However, at Cohasset Elder Affairs, lunch attendees enjoy delicious meals provided to us through our "Celebrity Chef Program." Through this program, local restaurants and talented non-professional cooks volunteer their time to prepare nutritious and tasty food. Seniors attending Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday lunches enjoy chicken almandine, shrimp scampi, pasta and meatballs, chicken cacciatore, beef bourguignon, stuffed shells, as well as quiche, pizza, calzones and from-scratch soups, salads and sandwiches. We thank the following for their participation in this program: Anne and Jean-Jacques Gaubelle — French Memories; Jennifer and Maggie Warsaw — Five South Main; Deborah Ryan — Cohasset Pizza House; Steve Karavasilis — Olympus Grille; Laurel Hickey, Diane Conrad and the Launch Program; Anna Abbruzzese; John and Linda Campbell; Laura Colletta; Lucia Flibotte; Kathy Iantosca; Rose Kierce; Trish Morse and Mary Kay Richardson.

We would also like to recognize our recently retired "Celebrity Chef," Marilyn LeBlanc.

Those interested in joining us for lunch, call 781-383-9112 to make a reservation. Lunches are served at noon on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Willcutt Commons, 91 Sohler St. We require a minimum of 24-hours' notice so we may give an accurate count to our chef, and request a voluntary donation of $3.

Hat's off to our Kenny Thayer

On Sept. 9, Kenny Thayer from the Town of Cohasset's Department of Public Works retired.

In a small town like this, I am sure that even if you didn't personally know Kenny, you will definitely miss his presence in the DPW. Kenny was the nice guy who would take time in a winter storm to help you pull your car out of a snow bank or if your mom was elderly, he would come in extra close with the sander so she wouldn't slip. He's the guy who would go up after the ASP Pumpkin sale and pick up all the pumpkins. He's the guy who in a storm would be the first out to help remove a tree in the road in the middle of the night. He's the guy who helped keep the school grounds, the common, the harbor, the beaches and the cemeteries looking so lovely.

Next time you are out and driving around our beautiful town, take a good look, there is A LOT to maintain. There are only a small handful of dedicated men in Cohasset's Department of Public Works who take care of our town. Every one of them are ALL hard working and ALL deserve a thank you.

Kenny worked for the town even after two major heart surgeries, shoulder surgery, and knee surgery. He didn't go out on disability, he continued to try and keep our town a beautiful place to be. His retirement is well deserved and well-earned. When you see him around town, shake his hand and say thank you. I know it will mean a lot to him. Enjoy your retirement Kenny!!!

Hedlund in runoff for Weymouth mayor

If he wins, senate seat could open up

By Ed Baker
ebaker@wickedlocal.com

State Sen. Robert Hedlund called his victory in the Sept. 17 Weymouth mayoral preliminary election "significant," but said real contest will come in the Nov. 3 town election, which Hedlund thinks will be a referendum on his and Mayor Susan Kay's job performance.

There were six candidates in the race; the top two face off on Nov. 3.

"I did not anticipate a day this good," Hedlund said after the vote Sept. 17. "But the vibe I felt told me it would be very positive."

Hedlund received 55.15 percent of the 9,445 votes cast in the preliminary election in Weymouth and Kay finished second with 2,220 ballots or 23.29 percent of the total tally.

Hedlund said the vote count for Kay is not a disaster.

"But I'd rather be at 55 percent than 23 percent," Hedlund said.

Kay said she believes her campaign will stage a more competitive fight against Hedlund before the town election. She also said her campaign staff is highly motivated and refuses to feel despair over Thursday's results.

"It's not over till the fat lady sings and this fat lady has not sung yet," Kay said.

"I do hope to pick up support from some of the other candidates," Kay said. "I congratulate Mr. Hedlund for the numbers he received."

Hedlund topped the ballot count in all of Weymouth's 18 precincts, by receiving 5,209 tallies, according to the board of registrars.

Hedlund said the upcoming election would reveal whether the voters believe Weymouth is going in the right direction.

"We will be looking to improve the schools and move SouthField in the right direction," Hedlund said.

Hedlund was first elected to represent the Plymouth-Norfolk District senatorial district in 1990; he lost in 1992 and was elected again in 1994 and has held the seat ever since.

The district includes Weymouth, Hull,

Hingham, Norwell, Marshfield, Cohasset, Scituate and Duxbury.

If Hedlund wins Nov. 3, it could open the floodgates for his successor in the state senate, with a special election in the spring. Hingham Selectman Paul Gannon, a democrat, has already announced he plans to run for the seat. The Weymouth charter does not allow the mayor to hold another elected office.

Hedlund said his duties have given him a glimpse of best practice methods used by administrators in the various towns and he'd like to incorporate them into Weymouth if voters elect him mayor.

Samaritans – steps to prevent suicide

Six out of 100 students will try to commit suicide.

Suicide is the intentional act of taking one's life. Suicide is the lonely final act of desperation that leaves behind a wake of pain and questions. Suicide is an issue that people don't like to address or discuss. Suicide is something that is recognizable and in many cases preventable.

This column has been incredibly difficult for me to write; feeling anxious, staying up late, rubbing my head, quitting, deleting then starting over again and again and then again. I hate the subject of suicide, but for all the reasons why I hate it, I must write about it.

Before we moved to Cohasset we lived in Needham. Two weeks ago Needham High School dedicated an impressive 7-foot-tall stainless steel sculpture entitled; "Own Your Peace." The incredibly striking curved structure with meandering quotes sits outside the school as a reminder to the student body that they are not alone when they feel desperate and need help. Eight years ago Needham didn't lose a student to suicide; Needham lost four students to suicide in less than two years.

The Needham community buckled with the string of tragic losses, but it's didn't break. Banding together residents formed the Needham Coalition for Suicide Prevention. With a foundation of teachers, students, town officials, religious leaders, police, doctors and others, the Needham Coalition for Suicide Prevention works to address the issue of teen suicide and offer those who need help solutions. "Own Your Peace" is so much more than a sculpture, it's a belief that the community-wide effort will help with noticing the warning signs of suicide and help those feeling the stresses of depression.

Suicide with anyone is difficult to process, but even more so when the person is young. The statistics regarding high school suicide in Massachusetts are alarming. A 2005 youth risk behavior survey, indicated that 13 percent of students seriously considered suicide, 12 percent made a plan to kill themselves, and 6 percent actually tried. 6 out every 100 students, a statistic that should send chills up your spine.

In Boston there's a non-profit organization dedicated 24/7 to helping those during their weakest moments. The Samaritans train volunteers to listen and support those in a time of need. Taking directly from their website; The "Samaritans' mission is to reduce the incidence of suicide by alleviating despair, isolation, distress and suicidal feelings among individuals in our community, 24 hours a day; to educate the public about suicide prevention; and to reduce the stigma associated with suicide. (They) accomplish this through services that emphasize confidentiality, nonjudgmental, and compassionate listening."

In the past 40 years, The Samaritans have fielded over 2.5 million calls for help from those feeling vulnerable. Those calls have been handled by some of the 4,500 trained volunteers who have been able to bring those valuable skills back into their communities as well.

There are so many activities for young people to get involved in but I can't think of one more challenging and would take more inner strength than volunteering with the Samaritans. Samaritan volunteers are from all walks of life, spiritual persuasions and age. What impressed me as I read their website is that people can begin training and volunteering at the age of 15. 15 years old, an age where most seem to be only concerned about what is happening on their phone, some are becoming Samaritan volunteers. I have to be honest, I am not sure I would have been strong enough to do this at the age of 15. I can tell you that if I was a college admissions officer and I saw this on an application, I'd know where my acceptance letter was heading.

Thinking about the community effort in Needham and the goals of the Samaritans, I can't but help wonder if the students in Cohasset had a friend or peer who was showing the warning signs of suicide would they recognize them and would they know what to do?

There are so many activities for young people to get involved in but I can't think of one more challenging and would take more inner strength than volunteering with the Samaritans.

While I may not have possessed the fortitude to volunteer with the Samaritans at a young age, I can take steps in helping prevent suicide; roughly 6,000 steps to be exact.

Tomorrow, my son and I will be participating in the Samaritan 5k walk / run in Boston. We will be walking as part of the team "Zeros Hero" which is honoring my friend's son who lost his struggle almost two years ago. I literally lack the words to properly express the pain from loss of this dynamic honor roll, over achieving young man. Unanswered questions still swirl around uncomfortably, but tomorrow's walk may provide a way to celebrate him and offer support for others who may be struggling with depression.

Supporting the effort to prevent suicide isn't easy, it's emotionally exhausting. However, if you or someone you know may be interested in the challenge and would like to learn more about the Samaritans and the amazing work they do, check out their website www.samaritanshope.org. If per chance you'd like to support team 'Zero's Hero', I'd be honored to walk on your behalf; just go to samaritanshope.org/events/5k/ and scroll to the bottom and click on Zero's Hero.

Today, a beautiful new sculpture stands out in front of Needham High School and a community has banded together to care for each other. It's my hope that this column will in some small way help ensure that Cohasset will never have to consider such a sculpture.

As always thanks for reading. Information was gathered from the Samaritans website and previous articles from Wicked Local and the Boston Globe about the high school suicides in Needham and Needham's response.

DENTISTS

"The trust we share with the patient and our burden of responsibility are things we take very seriously."

Freeman, a Hopkinton native and current Hanover resident, completed her dental education in 2005 and has been in private practice for nine years at Freeman Dental Associates in Hanson. She was looking for a second location. When her parents, residents of Scituate, told her McArthur was selling her Cohasset practice, Freeman snapped it up.

She made the purchase in July and will launch "business as usual" in October. She is thrilled to be sharing the practice with Dr. Jillian Smith, who graduated dental school in 2013 and has practiced all over the greater Boston area, dividing her weeks between three or more practices at a time.

"It's common for dentists to be multiple places today," Smith said.

She's used to working five or six days a week and commuting as far as two and a half hours to various communities. What she's not used to is having just one or two communities she can really sink her teeth into. To settle down in Cohasset and Hanson, even though she doesn't plan to move from her home in Charlestown, will really streamline things for Smith.

The women will be splitting their time between the two locations, with Smith working Mondays and Tuesdays in Cohasset and Freeman working Wednesdays and Thursdays. They will retain the same hygienists who previously worked under McArthur.

Both new dentists are certified to provide Invisalign, Botox for clenching and grinding, implants, cosmetic improvements, dentures, crowns, and more. Freeman is eager to work with some of her new equipment, including a 3-D x-ray scan machine that can help with diagnosis and long-term treatment planning because it uniquely allows the patient to see exactly what the doctor sees.

"The technology available is amazing," said Freeman. "We're looking to partner with patients, not just treat

According to Brandon Freeman, Alison's husband and office manager, she is always on top of the latest innovations and constantly pushes herself to learn new ways to help people.

He described how, after learning about implants at a seminar last year, Alison immediately came home and got the equipment to do it. She has also recently

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on roll calls from the week of September 14-18. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

CLEAR TITLE TO PROPERTY (S 1981)

Senate 31-7, approved and sent to the House a bill that supporters said would provide relief to Massachusetts homeowners who currently lack clear title to their homes due to prior faulty foreclosures while opponents argued it would curtail illegally foreclosed homeowners' right to regain title to their homes.

Supporters said the measure was filed in response to a Supreme Judicial Court decision that voided thousands of foreclosure sales. They noted the court said that a foreclosure is void if the foreclosing lender could not produce a written assignment of its mortgage prior to the first publication of notice. They argued the bill remedies this problem by allowing the affidavit that is recorded during the sale of the property to serve as conclusive evidence that the foreclosing lender is in compliance. They said this will help thousands of homeowners who unwittingly purchased an improperly foreclosed property and are currently without a clear title and consequently unable to sell or refinance their homes.

Opponents said the bill would curtail illegally foreclosed homeowners' right to regain title to their homes and strip them of their fundamental right to protect their property. They noted that limiting to three years a foreclosed homeowner's right to raise claims to challenge the validity of their foreclosure is too short.

(A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against it.)

ALLOW OWNERS OF FORECLOSED HOUSE TO STAY AND PAY RENT (S 1981)

Senate 15-23, rejected an amendment that would allow a homeowner facing foreclosure to continue to live in his or her home and pay a fair market rent until the bank sells the home.

Amendment supporters said this is a good deal for the homeowner, who is allowed to remain in his or her home longer, and for the banks, which will be paid rent instead of having the home sitting vacant. They noted that this will prevent vacant properties from falling into disrepair and resulting in a blight that reduces the value of homes in the neighborhood. They also argued that vacant houses can sit there for months or years and sometimes become a place for illegal activity of all sorts.

Some amendment opponents said a bill before the Judiciary Committee accomplishes the same goal. They argued the Senate should not rush this amendment through the Senate as an amendment to an unrelated bill dealing with titles but rather allow the bill to be the subject of a public hearing, public input and the transparent legislative process. Others said they are against the amendment because if the owner of the house cannot afford to pay the mortgage, it is unlikely he or she will be able to afford the rent and will likely get evicted. They said it only prolongs the limbo period.

(A "Yes" vote is for the amendment. A "No" vote is against it.)

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

REGULATE UBER AND LYFT - The Financial Services Committee heard testimony on several bills regulating controversial car-sharing services like Uber and Lyft that use a smartphone application to receive ride requests. Hundreds of people showed up at the nearly 12-hour hearing that lasted from 11 a.m. until 10:30 p.m.

The proposals include giving the Department of Public Utilities the power to certify and regulate car-sharing services; requiring background, driving record and Sex Offender Registry checks and fingerprint samples on all drivers; and requiring that vehicles used by these companies be registered in Massachusetts.

Representatives of Uber and Lyft companies defended their services noting they create many jobs with flexible hours and good pay. Opponents, led by the taxi industry, said that these services are the same as taxis and should be subject to the same strict regulations as cab companies.

BOSTON POLICE (H 2339) - Gov. Charlie Baker vetoed a bill that would have allowed retired Boston police officers to be appointed as special officers in order to serve on police details. The officers would have to have been off the force for no longer than 4.5 years, under the age of 68 and pass a medical exam. The measure had already been approved by the city of Boston, which said it currently can't provide sufficient officers for details and could make great use of trained ex-officers.

Gov. Baker said he supports the intent of the bill but in his veto message noted, "The United States Department of Labor has alerted my administration that if this bill as written were to become law, Massachusetts unemployment insurance law would no longer conform to federal requirements." The governor urged Boston and the Legislature to draft a new version of the bill that won't result in the state violating federal law.

PUBLIC HEALTH HEARINGS - The Public Health Committee held a hearing last week on dozens of proposals including:

BAN "JUNK FOOD" IN VENDING MACHINES (H 2005) - Requires vending machines in state-owned buildings to only serve what the bill defines as healthy foods. The measure bans the sale of soda and allows only water and carbonated water, coffee and tea, fat-free or 1 per cent low-fat dairy milk and up to 12 ounces of 100 per cent fruit juice or fruit juice combined with water or carbonated water. On the snack front, each item offered must meet certain standards including containing fewer than 200 calories, no more than 35 per cent of calories from fat, 0 grams of trans fat and no more than 200 milligrams of salt.

MANDATORY BICYCLE HELMETS FOR ALL (S 1117) - Requires all bicyclists to wear a helmet. Current law only requires riders under 16 to do so. The measure also requires The Department of Public Health to pursue ways that would encourage bicycle operators to wear highly-visible fluorescent clothing.

MANDATORY DIAPER-CHANGING AREA (H 19123) - Requires restaurants that serve families with children to have at least one designated diaper-changing area or facility on the premises that is open to all customers.

MUST LABEL FISH (H 1941) - Requires the state to establish a food labeling program for commercially sold saltwater fish including tuna, mackerel, swordfish, grouper, striped bass and bluefish. The label would provide consumers with information about the risk factors and toxin levels of eating these with a focus on the health of young children, women of child-bearing age and pregnant women.

RESTAURANTS MUST LIST ALLERGENS (H 1949) - Requires restaurants to identify any ingredients that contain protein derived from milk, eggs, fish, crustacean shellfish, tree nuts, peanuts, wheat or soybeans. The list would be included on the menu or in some other way readily available to customers.

NO ENERGY DRINKS FOR KIDS (H 2303) - Prohibits the sale of "energy drinks" to anyone under 18 years old. Energy drinks are defined as beverages that exceed a caffeine content of 71 milligrams per 12 ounce liquid.

NO LATEX (H 2055) - Prohibits any employee who handles food from using latex gloves. Non-latex gloves would be permitted.

MUST PROVIDE HOOKS IN BATHROOMS (S 1182) Requires all public bathrooms to contain a hook so that people can hang a jacket, purse or other personal belongings to avoid placing these items on the floor.

During the week of September 14-18, the House met for a total of three hours and 58 minutes while the Senate met for a total of four hours and 52 minutes.

PROJECT

developer Mike Roberts, representing Village Development Partners, LLC. In the letter, Roberts agreed to mitigate four issues raised at the board's September 2nd meeting, including one by the Water Department.

The Partners agree to loop the eight-inch water main to the connection in front of the well field entrance on James Lane. They will not perform any blasting of ledge, only chipping. They will provide a pre- and post-construction video of the nearby and fragile James Brook culvert. Finally, they will paint a crosswalk across Pleasant Street at the intersection with James Lane.

"With the letter, it addresses everything," Planning Board member Erik Potter said of the final revised site plan. "It's got a belt and suspenders."

Member Brian Frazier moved to approve the plans as presented on September 2nd, with the condition that modifications indicated in the letter be included in the plans. The five voting members supported the motion unanimously.

The Planning Board was ready to give the go-ahead on September 2nd but held up their approval due to an objection from the Water Department. Roberts and his team had a rocky meeting with the Water Department last Thursday that added still more expense to the burgeoning project.

The department insisted that the developers loop the water supply, which means that the water system in the neighborhood needs to create a circuit rather than a dead end. Currently, there is a line running along James Lane from Ellms Meadow to Cushing Road. The loop would add an additional line running the other direction along James Lane, past the development and out to Pleasant Street.

"Looping creates more turnover and less stagnation," explained Carl Hillstrom, manager of the water plant. "DEP encourages looping for water quality reasons and for increasing fire flow. They say that anywhere you can loop, you should."

The Water Department has required looping for all new developments in town, including the recent Cohasset Estates. The commission reminded Roberts that the requirement had been stated in a letter given to the developers in 2009.

Roberts, however, pointed out that in 2009, the lot had been owned by a different developer. Back then, it wasn't even the same lot. It had comprised only the land at 8 James Lane. The new developers also purchased the adjacent lot at 2 Pleasant Street, where JJ's Junction is located.

Roberts said he believed that looping was conditional based on the results of a flow pressure test of the water main off Pleasant Street, which the development would be connecting to. Since the results of the test showed the main exceeded the requirements, he did not think looping should be required.

He added that his team was already providing a lot of mitigation to the town by installing a new water main (which would benefit all the residents of James Lane), widening the road, adding sidewalks, installing street lights, and chipping the ledge instead of blasting.

"At some point, the project becomes uneconomical," he told the water commissioners.

The commission, however, insisted. "Our job is to protect the water supply for the town," said Water Commissioner Leonora Jenkins. "We have to look out for our ratepayers; they are number one."

"The James Brook culvert could flood the whole town," added Town Engineer Brian Joyce. "It's not you; it's the proximity of your development to critical infrastructure in the town."

The commission agreed to waive a portion of the water connection fee to help offset the cost, and invited Roberts to return if he found out that additional ledge would need to be removed in order to create the loop.

Ultimately, though, one more setback couldn't kill Roberts' vision. "It's been an ordeal, and I wish it hadn't been; it was unnecessary," he said. "But I think we've resolved all the issues. I'm officially very happy that we're gonna get the shovel in the ground. This is a great project."

He described how his efforts in Milton have provided exactly the kind of rejuvenation Cohasset is looking for in its village business district. He said that businesses can't survive without an "economic engine" of people to support them, and developments like this one could be the handhold Cohasset Village needs to not just stay afloat, but to thrive.

What really laid the foundation for the Homes at Cohasset Village was a change of wording in a zoning bylaw that was approved by voters at Annual Town Meeting in May. Previously, the bylaw was unclear as to whether non-residential areas of a home – the garage, basement, and attic – should be included in the gross square footage of the unit.

"Basically, we would've had to give them a building on a slab with no roof, and I don't think anyone in Cohasset would have liked that!" said developer Mike Roberts. "They were using a literal interpretation of the bylaw that made no operational sense."

The bylaw now reads, "The total residential gross floor area of a dwelling unit in the Village Business District shall not be less than 700 square feet nor more than 1500 square feet," which means that only the actual livable space is counted in the square footage.

The home at 8 James Lane in Cohasset that has been boarded up and sitting on the property for years will now be torn down to make way for the new townhomes. WICKED LOCAL STAFF PHOTO / ALYSSA STONE

This change paved the way for the developers to gain the Planning Board's approval, and with that, they're clear to move forward with getting a building permit. The next step will be to knock down the dilapidated old house that's currently on the site – a step that could finally win them some points with the neighbors.

"It's a big mess and a hazard for the neighborhood," said Cynthia MacCleave, who lives at 9 James Lane. "Kids have found their way in to the house; I've seen their cell phone lights in there. It's overgrown; it's a fire hazard; there's no railing on the deck and someone could fall off.

It should be demolished. I keep my eye on it the best I can, but it's not my property. I just want everybody to be safe."

She's not crazy about the building plans, though, and she's definitely not looking forward to the chipping that will soon be taking place outside her window. The site plan indicates five buildings: four duplexes and a triplex, for a total of 11 units.

"It looks like it belongs in Quincy, not little Cohasset," MacCleave said.

Roberts hired Campbell-Smith Architects of Duxbury to design the townhomes, and he couldn't feel more differently about the final result.

"Their specialty is the subtleties of old colonial homes, like extended gables with returns around the gutters," said Roberts. "We've lost the master craftsmen who do that because it's too expensive. Well, these guys specialize in that – the Shaker colonial look with elegant features."

"We want to start seeing some smiles around town," Roberts said. "We don't want to be evil. We want to work with you and build a nice project. This idea you voted for really works; it rejuvenates a town."

For what it's worth, he hasn't got any plans to get rid of JJ's Junction – "That'll stay right where it is."

DISASTER PLANNING

Revised flood maps could hold water with FEMA

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Cohasset selectmen voted Tuesday to move forward into the next phase of appealing FEMA's 2012 flood maps, which showed the iconic Atlantica restaurant under 22 feet of water in the event of a 100-year storm. The town is now prepared to request a letter of map amendment (LOMA) from FEMA.

After noticing the maps were inaccurate – sometimes subtly, and sometimes wildly so – the town voted in May to pursue reanalysis of the maps. GZA GeoEnvironmental, Inc. submitted a strong proposal buoyed by their recent success in neighboring Hingham, which faced a similar situation months earlier.

Peter Williams of GZA presented the company's findings to the Board of Selectmen on Tuesday, and it was all good news. Several residents looked on hopefully from the audience.

"We found a number of things that could support a LOMA," Williams announced. "We believe this map is a more accurate representation of the 100-year storm."

The 100-year storm is, simply, the sort of storm that happens only once in 100 years. FEMA has recognized the Blizzard of '78 to be the 100-year storm and bases several calculations off of high water marks calculated during that event.

The original maps from FEMA suggested wave heights four to five feet in excess of what was seen in 1978. They also used wind data that provided speed but not directionality, prompting GZA to acquire wind data from Logan Airport, and vastly overestimated wave setup, particularly in sheltered areas where such a setup would not even be possible.

GZA added more transect lines to the map, giving them a more fine-tuned view of what could be expected in some of the small, sheltered, intricate crannies of Cohasset's unique coastline. This approach enabled them to reduce base flood elevations in several areas and remove several structures, including Atlantica and the Cohasset Harbor Inn, from unrealistic velocity zones.

But as Williams pointed out, this doesn't mean anything has actually changed yet. "We still have to get through the FEMA technical review," he said.

Williams, Town Manager Chris Senior, and Town Engineer Brian Joyce think the town has a good chance of receiving the LOMA.

"The analysis was very extensive," said Joyce. "I would suggest proceeding."

"We're teed up to have a very strong application," said Senior.

Selectman Karen Quigley moved to approve moving forward with the next phase of submitting the LOMA request. All five members voted in favor.

The latest maps will be posted on the town website, CohassetMA.org.

UPDATE

Energy plan gets Green light

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Selectmen voted Tuesday to provide a letter requested by the Alternative Energy Commission in support of their energy reduction plan. This letter will be the final piece of the Green Communities application, to be submitted in October.

The energy reduction plan is a five-year strategy that aims to reduce the town's energy consumption by 20 percent or more, compared to baseline usage calculated over the course of 2014.

The plan is one of five criteria required for Cohasset to be certified as a Green Community and must be approved by both the selectmen and the School Committee. The School Committee have already signed off on their commitment to supporting the plan.

Mary Jo Larson, Vice Chairman of the AEC, presented the plan on Tuesday. AEC is taking an aggressive stance on reducing energy usage in town, starting with the "low-hanging fruit" of electrical savings.

Larson said the town could reduce consumption by as much as 65 percent just by retrofitting the street lights with LED bulbs, a project that can be funded by Green Community grants. AEC anticipates completion of that phase by December 2016.

Other lighting retrofits have already begun around town, kicking off energy savings at the police and fire stations and the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. Retrofits in municipal buildings should be done by December of this year.

Later phases will focus on thermal savings by adjusting natural gas usage. The final phase will hinge on the town's decision regarding the needs of the Town Hall building. Whether they choose to repair or completely renovate the building, Larson said that Chairman Shaun Selha has a contingency plan.

"If I understand this correctly, we're way over the 20 percent," said Larson.

Selectman Karen Quigley moved to authorize Town Manager Chris Senior to write the necessary cover letter stating the board's acceptance of the energy reduction plan. All members of the board were in favor.

CONFERENCE

Senior may be sleepless in Seattle

By Amanda C. Thompson
athompson@wickedlocal.com

Town Manager Chris Senior is headed to Seattle this weekend, but he won't have any time for sightseeing. On the other hand, he may be needing a whole lot of their legendary coffee to keep up with the schedule he's set for himself.

Senior will be attending the annual ICMA (International City/County Management Association) conference. Sunday through Tuesday, he will participate in sessions on a variety of topics and network with municipal managers from around the country and the world.

"It's an opportunity to hear and see how people are doing it across the country," Senior said. "And by it, I mean everything: parks, police, the whole nine yards."

ICMA provides educational programs, sponsors best practices, offers a credentialing program, and puts on the annual conference, which is hosted in a different city each year. Senior attended last year's conference in Charlotte and also attended the year it was hosted in Boston.

According to the ICMA website, "The organization's mission is to create excellence in local governance by developing and fostering professional management to build better communities."

"It's the preeminent professional development program for public sector managers in the country," Senior said. "When you're working, you're going nonstop. This is an opportunity to breathe for a couple of days and focus on the skills, and come back refreshed with new ideas."

Senior said he would be focusing on sessions about communication skills and devices in a public setting, especially the use of social media, and human resources.

Like a kid in a candy store, he's having a hard time choosing between exciting sessions that have overlapping time slots.

He also looks forward to talking to municipal managers from around the country who, often, are facing the same challenges and same opportunities he faces here in Cohasset. These ideas are exchanged in small-table discussions, a staple of the ICMA conferences.

"I set professional development goals for myself in addition to what the selectmen recommend," said Senior. "This is a chance to take an assessment of where I'm at and what I need to polish. I have to communicate all the time; it never hurts to polish that."

GIRLS SOCCER

Beginning to gel

Captains taking the lead as team grows

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

As every new season begins, there's always the question of how well will a group play together, what are the right combinations, who will step up and be the leader.

For the Cohasset girls soccer team, the questions are beginning to be answered, and with room to grow, that is a good thing.

A solid start with three wins in four games also helps.

"With the season underway we are starting to gel as a team, I'm very impressed and excited," Cohasset coach Deb Beal said. Our senior girls have been waiting their turn to lead this group and they are doing a wonderful job."

The leaders are the captains.

"Captains Kerry Dunn, Meg Rosano, Emily Rosano and Shea Kearney are very comfortable in their roles and they have the senior support of Julia Richardson, Kate Gibbons, Lauren McManus, Helena Landquist and Kyle Burke," Beal said. "Two freshman have joined us this season, Maeve Humphrey and Rachel Regan, these two have a lot of soccer experience and bring some new excitement to the program. They both are settling in and finding their way while developing their roles."

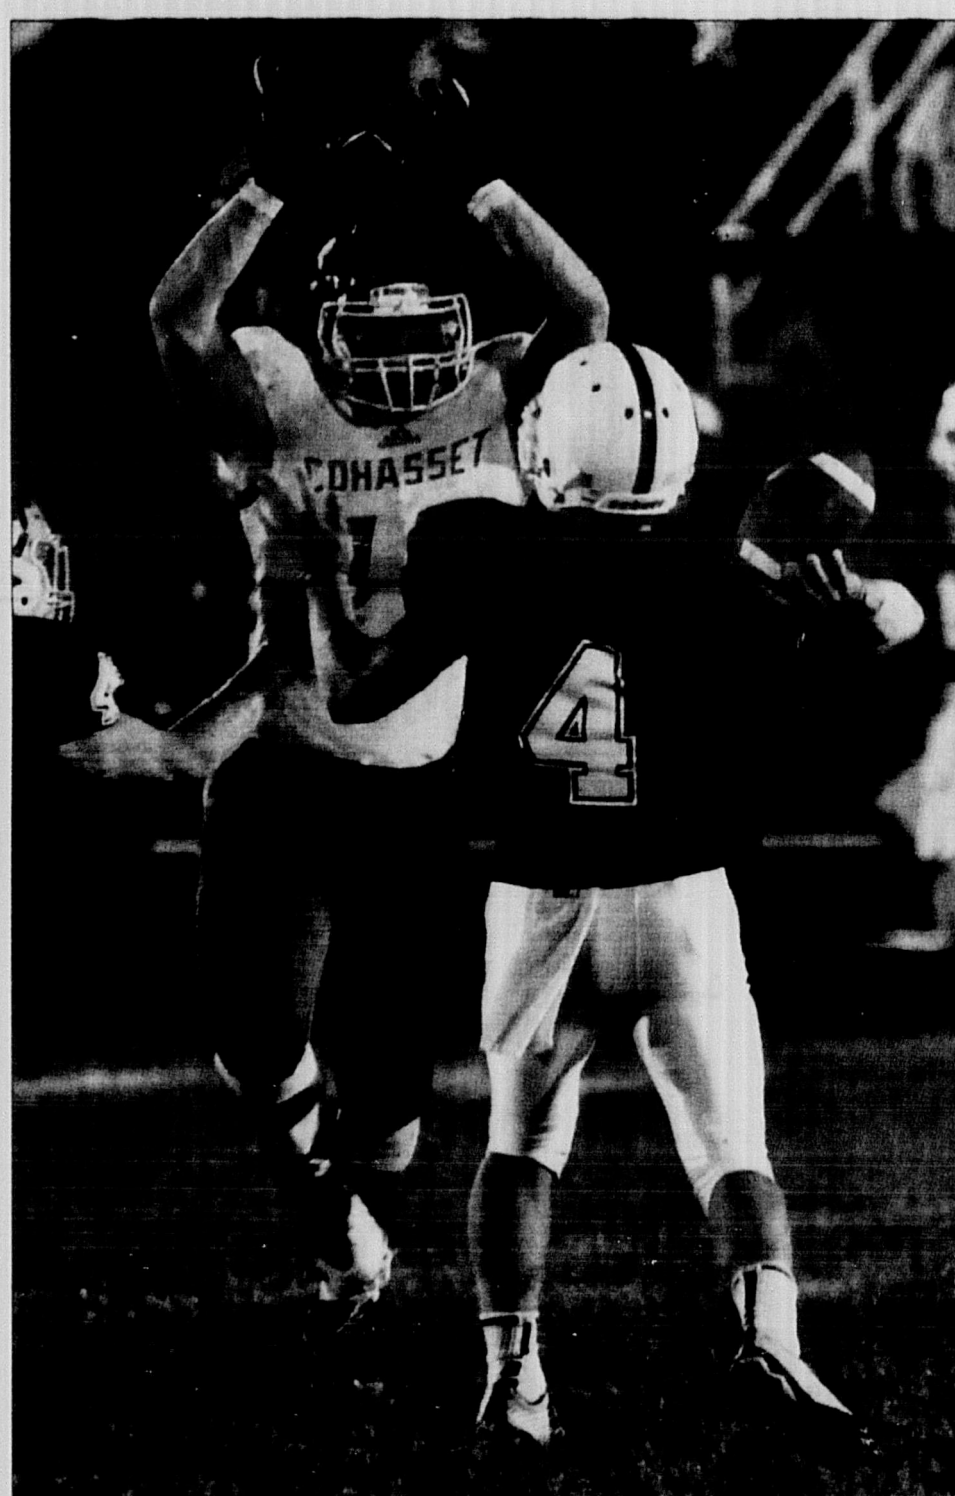

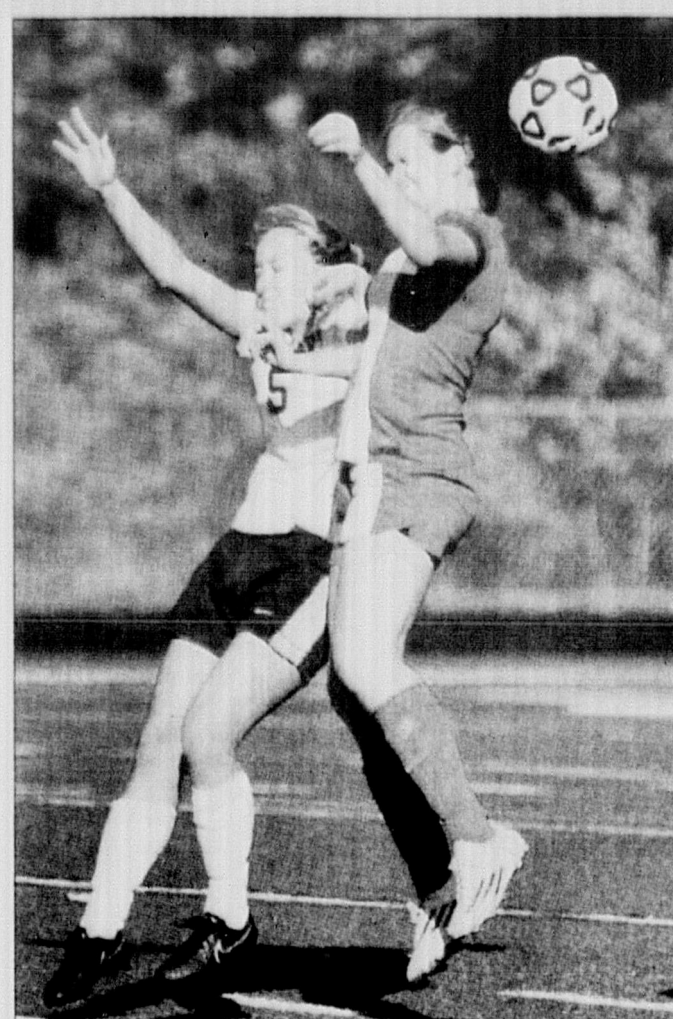

Having a solid veteran in net is also comforting.

"Sophomore Emma Loft returns as our goalie, picking up just where she left off last season," Beal said. "Zoe Doherty joins the varsity this fall and has not been shy about finding the back of the net. She's a hard worker on the field and creates opportunities for herself and teammates."

Rough outing

Gridders downed by Rockland, prepare for Hull

By William Wassersug
wwassersug@wickedlocal.com

After winning last year's Super Bowl, the Cohasset football team was given notice that they're not an invincible force, and anything can happen on a particular day.

The notice came from Rockland last Friday night in the form of a 27-13 loss on the road in a game that came down to the final minutes.

It wasn't that Cohasset needed any kind of notice — there are no big heads or any lack of effort from the Skippers, and in fact, the loss gave the team extra incentive to clean up some of the mistakes that cost them, including a holding penalty that resulted in what would have been a go-ahead touchdown by Nick Hall being called back in the fourth quarter.

Skipper coach Pete Afanasiw feels that many of the problems can be fixed, and if anything, the loss was a learning experience.

"Losses are never easy to take," Afanasiw said with an emphasis on the word never when asked if the loss was easier to digest with the play-off format that began last year, a format that where one regular season league loss doesn't end playoff dreams. "However we constantly try to find good things to take out of each loss and win for that matter so we can continue to improve. We never want to make the same mistakes week in and week out.

"The mistakes that we committed on Friday night were very fixable. The boys have been hard at work in trying to do just that."

So far so good.

"Practice has been good this week," he said. "We'll be ready to atone for our performance last week, and hopefully we'll play our best, especially now that we are into league play."

The Skippers host Hull Friday (Sept. 25) in a South Shore League battle.

"They have some very skilled players," Afanasiw said of Hull. "A strong quarterback and receiver tandem and a good running back. They love to isolate receivers and take deep shots and hopefully we'll be able to stymie them. They have also been trying to establish the run with each game, so we'll have to be ready for a little bit of everything."

Cohasset is dedicating the Hull game to the memory of Tom Wigmore, the Cohasset Mariner's Citizen of the Year who passed away in July. There will be a ceremony before kickoff with his wife and family.

In the Rockland game, Cohasset fell behind 13-0 before scoring twice in the Boys rebound from first loss to edge Rockland

A year ago, Archbishop Williams knocked the Cohasset boys soccer team out of the MIAA Tournament in the South Sectional Final.

The Skippers had a rematch Friday, and gave Archbishop Williams run in a 2-0 loss, the first of the season for Cohasset.

The loss was tough, but Cohasset shook it off quickly and went back to work Monday against another top squad as they hosted Rockland.

The game ended with a

SOCCER

Silver Lake boys, Weymouth girls top the charts

Inside the Six
2015 - Week 2

By Ryan Wood

If the second week is any indication of what's to come this fall, this might be the best high school soccer this area has seen in years. There were shock upsets, massive victories, and some very close matches that could've gone either way. We have a new No. 1 on the girls' side, while the boys see some changes, but the same club sits atop the poll. Check out the week two rankings; last week's ranking is in parentheses. And we've got some quality players of the week once again.

BOYS

1. Silver Lake (1) - The Lakers retain their top spot for the second week in a row, but survived two scares this week. They tied both Marshfield and Hingham, but finished the week off with a 6-2 win over Whitman-Hanson to move to 3-0-2.

2. Weymouth (2) - The Wildcats also remain idle in the rankings, holding onto their No. 2 position, after beating Wellesley and Newton North. They enter the week at 3-1.

3. Cohasset (3) - The Skippers saw their winning streak come to a halt, but it was against one of the top teams in the state in Archbishop Williams. Prior to the loss, the Skippers beat Monomoy handily and start week three with a 3-1 record.

4. Norwell (4) - The Clippers righted the ship this week and remain at No. 4. They topped Abington, 7-0, and Marshfield, 4-0, to push their record to 4-1.

5. Hingham (6) - The Harbormen move up one spot to No. 5 after a decent week. It started with an impressive, 2-2 draw against No. 1 Silver Lake. The week ended on a down note with a 3-1 loss to Quincy.

6. Rockland (NR) - Making their debut this year Inside the 6, the Bulldogs came into this week at a perfect, 3-0. In their only match last week, the Dogs handed East Bridgewater a 4-2 defeat.

On the bubble: Braintree, Pembroke, Scituate

Player of the Week - Joe Kimball (Rockland) - The senior is on pace to score 70 goals this year after netting 10 in three games. In his only game last week, Kimball tallied a hat trick in a huge, 4-2 win over East Bridgewater.

GIRLS

1. Weymouth (2) - The Wildcats dethrone Hingham after yet another impressive week. They improved to 4-0 with wins over Wellesley and Newton North.

2. Hingham (1) - The Hingham fall out of the top spot after suffering their first loss in nearly two years. They bounced back from the 6-0 defeat to Silver Lake by beating Quincy, 6-2 and move their record to 2-1.

3. Silver Lake (6) - Making the biggest leap of the week are the Lakers, who pulled off a massive win, blanking Hingham, 6-0, handing the defending state champs their first loss since 2013. The Lakers lost two close matches, one to Marshfield and the other to Whitman-Hanson and come into this week at 3-2.

4. Cohasset (3) - Despite a non-league loss to Cardinal Spellman, the Skippers enter the week with a 2-1 mark and remain a dangerous team in the South Shore League.

5. Scituate (4) - The Sailors finally played some matches, and they won both to start the season. They only fall in the rankings due to Silver Lake's jump up the charts.

6. Norwell (5) - The Clippers, who improved to 3-2, slip to No. 6. They beat Mashpee and Abington and secured a hard-fought draw against Marshfield.

On the bubble: Abington, Marshfield, Plymouth North, Rockland
Player of the Week: Silver Lake girls - For the first time, an entire team wins Player of the Week, and deservedly so. The Silver Lake girls soccer team did what no other team has been able to do since 2013 and that was beat Hingham. They became just the second team in two years to hold Hingham scoreless as well.

The Inside the 6 - Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth.

second half to tie it up.

That was all they could get however.

After Hall's touchdown with 6:46 left to play was called back, Rockland took over. Cohasset gave the ball back on downs about a minute later, and the Bulldogs made the mistake count, although they had trouble of their own on the way, including a late touchdown that was negated with a penalty.

Rockland regained the lead on a huge 37-yard touchdown pass that left fans shaking heads. It was one of those plays where the defense did everything right but so did Rockland.

"We had good pressure on the quarterback," Afanasiw said, "Alex Norton was air-borne and nearly deflected the pass, and Danny Axelson was right in the receivers' hip pocket, he just missed the ball as it fell into his hands. It was a great throw and nice catch."

There were some good showings for the Skippers, starting with Hall.

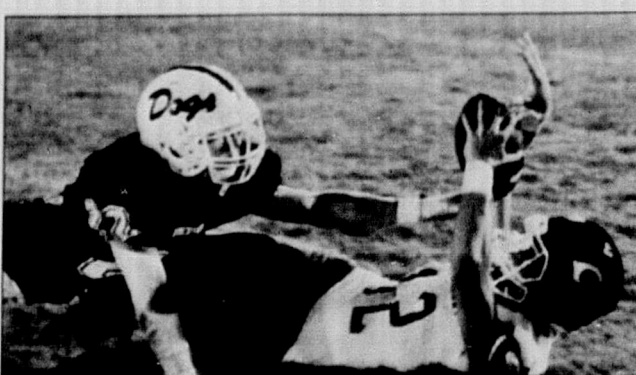

"Nick Hall had a very solid game all around," Afanasiw said. "He ran for 126 yards and a touchdown, and had a big interception that set up a touchdown that was unfortunately called back because of a penalty. Noah Froio also brought a very physical style of play at the cornerback position considering he is only a sophomore. He has really come on strong lately."

"Will Thomas, also a sophomore, had a solid game at linebacker and appears to be feeling comfortable with each passing week."

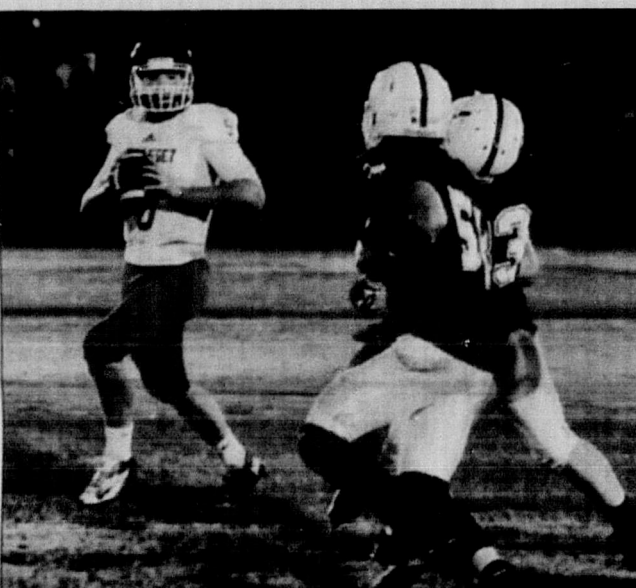

Hall's fourth-quarter pick was a thing of beauty, as he grabbed the pass with one hand and held on for the interception that gave Cohasset possession late in what was a 13-13 game at the time.

Afanasiw liked the way his team battled back on the road.

"The second half of the game was far better for us than the first," Afanasiw said. "We competed harder in the final 22 minutes than we did in the first 22 minutes. The boys never gave up and fought to the very end."

Juniors Sophie Matthews, Nikki Federle and Audrey Hart return as the starting forward line and have wasted no time dominating that area.

"Those three girls have developed a nice style of play and they are working so well together, it's wonderful to see them creating scoring opportunities for each other."

Juniors Lilly Ambrose, Caroline O'Brien and Kara Nelson join us this season. Lilly and Kara play primarily defensive roles while Caroline is a forward," Beal said.

O'Brien scored her first varsity goal against Abington last week.

"I must take a minute and address the play of seniors Dunn, Kearney and the Rosano's," Beal said.

"Those four are the core of our group. Kearney is dangerous from outside on the midfield and her play-making and finishing is huge for us. She has been involved in nearly all the goals this season."

Dunn took over the role of center midfield this season.

Beal likes what she's seen. "I have been so impressed," said about Dunn. "She's healthy, fit and strong. She has a great sense of the game and is getting more and more comfortable each game."

Beal has also been very happy with Emily Rosano and Meg Rosano.

"Emily Rosano is clearly a leader anchoring the defense," she said. "Em is a solid player who displays hard work and discipline. Meg Rosano is our most consistent player, always calm and collected. Having the Rosano duo back there in addition with Gibbons I believe we have the one of the strongest defenses out there. Loft and McManus have been training hard and both have had impressive performances in the goal. They each bring a lot to the table and we are very fortunate to have two goalies."

Beal also likes where her squad is in the standings.

"We are 3-1-0 to date and our performance in the South Shore League looks promising," she said. "We played Carver (3-2), Abington (6-2) and Rockland (5-1). Our non-league games this season are challenging, we face Cardinal Spellman twice, Brockton twice and Silver Lake once. I believe these games will help us prepare for the state tournament. I know the girls are excited and we coaches are also."

Below decks, things look good as well, with a thriving junior varsity on the upswing.

Olivia Almeida, a math teacher at the high school, has taken over the JV program and they have 19 players who are developing the skills necessary to play varsity in the future.

Junior varsity includes: Marina Longo, Kaitlyn Patterson, Kate McCarthy, Ryder Sullivan, Kate Quigley, Kiley Crough, Kate Fitzpatrick, Sophie Swartwood, Bridget Osten, Morgan Cingari, Charlotte Purdy, Caleigh Durkin, Courtney Shanley, Elise Wimberly, Annie Toomey, Leah Fredey, Lane Hinson, Lucie Novelline and Samantha Naples. They have opened the season 3-1-0 also.

Girls soccer still undefeated in SSL

On Friday Sept. 18, the Cohasset girls soccer team played Cardinal Spellman, a perennial Catholic Central Large powerhouse at Alumni Field.

Cohasset sophomore Zoe Doherty scored her second career varsity goal but it was not enough as the girls lost 6-1.

On Monday September

21, the Skippers played Rockland at Alumni Field.

Skippers freshman Mave Humphrey scored her first career varsity goal in the first half.

Also scoring in the first half were juniors Audrey Hart and Sophie Matthews who combined for two first half goals.

In the second half seniors Shea Kearney and Meg Rosano combined for two second half goals to give the girls a 5-1 victory over Rockland to improve to 3-1 overall and 3-0 in the South Shore League Small.

The Lady Skippers were at Mashpee on Thursday, for a 4 p.m. game against the Lady Falcons.

Golfers start 6-0

The Cohasset golf team picked up a pair of victories early in the week, beating Archbishop Williams 131-138, Tuesday.

The Skippers got a huge performance from Ben Moy, who fired a 40 in the No. 5 spot.

Mike McKelvey also shot a 40 for the Skippers. The Skippers followed with a win at Carver.

The golfers host East Bridgewater, Monday and Monomoy, Tuesday. After that, they'll be off until Monday, Oct. 5, when they start a very busy stretch of three matches in three days, hosting Rockland, Oct. 5, and Archbishop Williams, Oct. 6. They travel to Monomoy, Oct. 7.

Cross Country sweeps

The Hull-Cohasset cross country team picked up a sweep against Randolph Tuesday.

The boys won 21-35, while the girls won 18-41.

O'Brien selected for bank program

Patrick O'Brien, 27, of Cohasset, was recently selected by Citizens Bank for its Commercial Banker Development Program.

A 2011 graduate of Babson College, O'Brien joins 12 other CBBDP trainees selected from a highly competitive applicant pool.

Launched in 2011, Citizens' Commercial Banker Development Program gives recent college graduates learning opportunities to start their banking careers with a leading financial institution.

"We are pleased to have another promising class of young bankers begin their careers with the Citizens Bank Commercial Banker Development Program," said Quincy Miller, president of Citizens Bank in Massachusetts. "This program is an important talent pipeline for Citizens as we continue to grow our commercial bank and serve a wide variety of corporate customers in Massachusetts and across the country."

"I am very excited to have this opportunity to begin my career in commercial banking with Citizens," said O'Brien. "Citizens is a great company that is really committed to serving its commercial customers and the Commercial Banker Development Program will enable me to learn not only about the bank's products and services, but also its approach to delivering great ideas to its customers."

Citizens' 12-month Commercial Banker Development Program combines classroom instruction with credit analysis writing and two business line rotations.

Citizens selects program participants through campus visits and interviews with students seeking long-term career opportunities in banking. The Commercial Banker Development Program is open to students with a range of educational backgrounds and majors.

Following the successful completion of the program, graduates are placed in a Citizens Commercial Banking business line as credit analysts.

Citizens also offers a Commercial Banking summer internship program to rising seniors. This summer, 17 interns worked across Citizens' 11-state footprint. Selection for a summer internship position is also competitive and the program serves as a feeder for the Commercial Banker Development Program. Seven of this year's CBBDP trainees had previously been summer interns.

Citizens is accepting applications for the Commercial Banker Development Program this month. For more information about Citizens, please go to the Citizens Commercial Banking website.

BOY SCOUTS

Installed as Old Colony president

At its annual meeting in July, the Old Colony Council of the Boy Scouts of America installed Robert D. Hillman of Cohasset as its President. The Old Colony Council is chartered by the Boy Scouts of America to administer the BSA's programs in 41 cities and towns south and west of Boston, including Plymouth County, and southern Norfolk County. The Council charts 197 Cub Scout Packs, Boy Scout Troops, Venturing Crews and Explorer Posts that provide scouting for nearly 6,000 youth and 2,000 adult volunteers.

Hillman comes to the position after serving as the Council's Executive Vice President as well as the Council's Vice-President for Legal Affairs. For four years he was the Chairman of the Cranberry Harbors District, which supports programs in the eastern area of the Council, from Plymouth to Cohasset.

"Rob comes to the job with a unique qualification" said Rick Stritzinger, the Scout Executive of the Council and head of its professional staff. "He has been and remains the Scoutmaster of Troop 28 in Cohasset, which keeps him connected to the scouting program in a very direct way while serving as President."

Hillman's goals for the Council during his three-year commitment is to maintain its high level of program excellence while promoting scouting in every community. "We are very proud of our scouting programs and the Council's 640-acre Camp Squanto in Myles Standish State Forest in Plymouth. We will continue to improve the camp and to make it available for both the traditional summer program and throughout the year. We are also very proud of our Scouts in Every Neighborhood program which promotes scouting in every community in our Council, including communities which have not been fully served by scouting in the past."

Both Hillman and Stritzinger expressed approval of the BSA's recent changes in its membership policies concerning both youth members and adult volunteers. "The Old Colony Council had adopted inclusive membership policies years before the national change. We are proud of our leadership on that issue, and are pleased to move forward with the membership issue resolved" said Hillman. "This is an exciting time to be involved with scouting, and I look forward to serving both the council and Troop 28 in Cohasset."

Hillman resides in Cohasset with his wife, Margie, daughter, and two sons, both of whom are Eagle Scouts. He is an attorney and managing principal of Deutsch Williams in Boston, where he concentrates his practice in business litigation and employment law.

COHASSET RESIDENT

Design Management Institute recognizes Bill Hannon

Cohasset resident Bill Hannon, Professor Emeritus of the Massachusetts College of Art and Design, Industrial Design Society of America Life Member, and Founder of the Design Management Institute will be honored at a black tie gala celebrating the 40th Anniversary of the Institute.

Hannon's vision and contributions to the design industry will be recognized by the glittering list of design luminaries set to attend the event on Monday, Sept. 28.

and Design, Bill realized as a young Design Manager that he was no longer executing design, but managing it — and it wasn't an easy transition. "My inexperience caused me no end of problems and nothing in my design education had prepared me for the thoroughly foreign culture

I found myself in. I had to understand the different disciplines of engineering, marketing, manufacturing, and even the bean counters. In sum, I was forced to remake myself."

After this formative trial by fire, Hannon co-established Corporate Design Consultants (CDC) Boston's largest design consultancy. In 1971 Bill was recruited to chair the Division of Design at MassArt and shortly thereafter, remembering the culture shock that had defined his early career as a corporate manager, Bill organized a national conference on design management which led to the establishment of the Design Management Institute (DMI) in 1975. DMI is now a global international design research and educational institution with a community of over 30,000 people that connects design to business, to culture, to customers — and to the changing world.

A campaign has launched to name the new Design and Media Center at the Massachusetts College of Art and Design (MassArt) after Bill. Tax deductible contributions may be made by mail: to William J. Hannon Recognition, MassArt Foundation, 621 Huntington Ave., Boston, MA 02115

Cooking dry pasta

Tips for getting it just right

By the editors of Relish Magazine

Made from ground semolina flour and water, dried pastas can withstand rich and hearty sauces such as a meaty ragu. Here are some tips for getting perfect results:

- Figure 3 ½ to 4 ounces of dry pasta per serving.
- Use plenty of water — at least 1 gallon for every pound of pasta.
- Salt the water liberally — about a tablespoon per gallon of water.
- Add the pasta to boiling water and stir with a pair of tongs so the pieces don't stick together.
- Cook for the time recommended on the package, but a minute or two before the end of cooking the time, taste to be sure the pasta is not overcooking. It should be al dente (literally, "to the tooth"), giving a slight resistance when you bite into it.

- Before draining the pasta in a colander, use a glass measuring cup to ladle out a about a cup of cooking water. You may want to use it to loosen the sauce once you've added it to the pasta.
- Combine the pasta and the sauce in one pan and toss to coat well, ensuring that every bite has the perfect proportion of noodle to sauce.

▲ Rigatoni with Sausage and Kale

- 8 ounces dried rigatoni
- 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 12 ounces hot Italian turkey sausage, casings removed and roughly crumbled
- 4 large garlic cloves, minced
- ¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- ½ cup reduced-sodium chicken broth
- 12 ounces kale, stems removed, leaves roughly torn
- ½ cup freshly grated Pecorino Romano cheese

1. Cook pasta according to package directions. Drain, reserving 1 cup pasta cooking water.
2. Heat oil in a Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Add sausage and cook about 5 minutes, breaking up clumps with a spoon. Add garlic, crushed red pepper and half the broth, stirring to loosen brown bits on the bottom of pan. Add kale and cook until wilted. Add remaining broth; cover and cook until kale is tender, about 5 minutes.

3. Add pasta and ½ cup of the reserved cooking water to sausage mixture (add more cooking water as needed to loosen the sauce); cook 2 minutes. Toss with cheese and serve. Serves 4.

English muffins basis for macaroon puffs

Southerners love muffins — the standard type, that is. For many years, I had never tasted an English muffin. After all, those don't look anything like the muffins I enjoy with butter for breakfast or a snack.

The English muffin is a "yeast-raised, unsweetened bread about 3 ½ inches in diameter and about 1 inch thick." These muffins are usually baked on a griddle.

When I was researching this version of muffin, I found a statement saying "that a good, homemade English muffin is a rarity."

If you are not ready to try your hand at making the English muffin from scratch, there are some good commercially-prepared ones in the supermarket.

Once I started eating English muffins, I decided to experiment with them. A combination of two popular flavors came to mind: lemon and coconut.

The filling made from these ingredients was spooned over the muffin halves. As they baked, this filling seeped into the porous texture and the coconut puffed up to form a macaroon layer on top. The result is the following recipe for "Lemon Macaroon Puffs."

If you can get it, the unsweetened, macaroon coconut, which is very fine, is best for these "puffs."

However, I have made them with the regular bagged coconut that you can buy in almost every grocery store. If you want that fine texture, you can use the food processor, but be sure to stop short of a powdery texture.

If lemon is not one of your favorite flavors, do your own experimenting with other flavors. Using orange juice will give you an ambrosia flavor. A piña colada version would use pineapple juice and a little rum flavoring (instead of the vanilla extract). I have even made a pecan pie version by mixing together brown sugar, an egg, butter and pecans.

This is a great recipe for those who enjoy experimenting in the kitchen.

Lemon Macaroon Muffin Puffs

- 1 large egg
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- ½ cup fine macaroon coconut
- 3 English muffins

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a small bowl, beat the egg until light and pale yellow.

Add sugar, butter, salt, vanilla and lemon juice. Mix until blended. Stir in coconut. Spoon about 2 tablespoons of the lemon macaroon mixture on top of each muffin half, spreading it to cover the top.

Place the halves on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until the topping puffs and turns golden brown.

Best served warm. Serves 6.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

HOROSCOPE

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although practical situations continue to dominate this week, there's time for the Lamb to indulge in the fun things in life — like maybe taking a special someone out for a great evening.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This week favors relationships. Take time to renew old ones, and make time to go where new friends can be found. On a more practical note, expect news about a business deal.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You should be seeing some progress on that new workplace situation. Meanwhile, family matters might demand more attention, and you'll want to set aside time to deal with them.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A relationship suddenly might present some challenges you never expected. After talking things out, you might want to consider taking some time to assess what you've learned.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) A disappointing response to a request might dampen the Lion's spirits.

But you might want to ask the reasons behind it. What you learn can be of great importance in a future undertaking.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A once-volatile situation should be settled by now, giving you a chance to refocus on a project you've been planning for. Look for an interested party to rally to your support.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A business matter that unexpectedly turns into a personal situation could create complications. Best to resolve the matter now before too much harm can be done.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Emotions can run high when they involve personal matters that no one really wants to talk about. But this could be a good time to create the means to a workable outcome.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A positive response to a workplace request could lead the way to other long-sought changes. Congratulations. A personal situation also takes a welcome turn.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Patience pays off, as that once-overwhelming work situation continues to become easier to handle on a one-by-one basis. Look for positive news from a colleague.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It might be a good idea to take more time to reassess your next move in working out a complex situation. You could benefit from a new perspective on the matter.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might want to consider making time to discuss a change of plans with everyone concerned. Be prepared to explain your actions. Also be prepared to listen to alternatives.
BORN THIS WEEK: You have a strong sense of what is right, and you try to work from that foundation. Friends see you as reliable.
